This work marks the completion of one phase of my life, and the beginning of another. It is difficult to tell what the future holds for me. So I will use this space to think about the last one year and what it has meant for me.

For long as I can remember it was a dream of mine to study English literature. The completion of this degree marks the partial fulfilment of that dream. Partial fulfilment in the sense that my dream will be complete when I will be able to complete my Doctorate of Philosophy. I have had great teachers and The Central University of Haryana has been particularly exemplary, in this regard. In the company of some of the greatest minds in the world, I have spent almost a year. I must thank the M. Phil programme at Central University of Haryana. The time spent here has been some of the happiest and most remarkable of my life.

No words of thanks can sum up the gratitude that I owe to Prof. Moolchand Sharma, Honourable Vice- Chancellor of Central University of Haryana, who has always been a key-person for me inculcating the learning attitude towards cutting-edge research right from the first day of my stay in this University.

I express my deep sense of gratitude and warm regards to Dr. Bir Singh Yadav, Associate Professor, Department of English, School of Language, Linguistics, Culture and Heritage, Central University of Haryana, for his valuable guidance and support. He was very kind enough to make himself available to me whenever I needed his guidance and help. In fact without his valuable suggestions and guidance, it would have been very difficult for me to complete the present study.

I can barely express my gratitude to Prof. H.S.Chandalia, Head, Department of English, School of Language, Linguistics, Culture and Heritage, Central University of Haryana. He is a good Samaritan who has always promoted me for academic excellence. It is he who always lends a hand to all students.

I would also like to thank Dr. Sanjeev Kumar, Assistant Professor, Department of English, School of Language, Linguistics, Culture and Heritage, Central University of Haryana. A young and dynamic teacher who was always there beside me whenever I was confused or nervous and like a friend, philosopher and guide helped me in overcoming the hurdles that I faced.

I am highly obliged to Dr. Archana Kumar, Associate Professor, Department of English, Banaras Hindu University, who provided me the vision to pursue research in English when I was a student under her during my undergraduate and postgraduate courses. I must confess that she played the role of first fiddle in my career orientation.

All thanks to Mr. Saaket Kumar, Deputy Registrar, Central University of Haryana, who always helped me in my times of distress. I must express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Dinesh Kumar Kaushik Assistant Librarian of Central University of Haryana who always went out of his skin to help me by providing the books that I needed. I am also thankful to Mr. Radhey Shayam Singh, Section Officer, Central University of Haryana. He is a person who right from my day of admission till the submission looked into my documents carefully and provided the necessary help whenever needed. Mr. Paramjeet Singh, Assistant, Central University of Haryana, deserves special mention because he is the man who made my dissertation look organised by lending his expertise of graphics in my dissertation. Last but not least I want to extend my heartiest thanks to Ms. Purna Mittal, Junior Professional Assistant, Central University of Haryana, who was always there to help me whenever I faced technical glitches. She was the reason because of whom I was able to access the internet and download the concerned articles which enhanced my research.

I thank all those whose names may have escaped attention here but have in one way or the other contributed to my work.

Above all I recall of the loving care and valued guidance of my parents from whom I have learnt my early lessons of life. I sought inspiration and I owe a great deal to my father Suresh Chandra Banerjee and my mother Rama Banerjee. They still continue to be the fountain of my life. They always encourage me to accept great challenges of life and also suggest me the ways to overcome them.
