

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all I would like to thank God, the Almighty, for having made everything possible by giving me strength and courage to do this work. In other words, I acknowledge the blessings of God without which normal human being such as I am, would never be able to accomplish this task.

To begin with, I must acknowledge gratitude to my guide Dr. Bir Singh Yadav, Head of Department, Central University of Haryana who had faith in me and whose rational insight, objective thinking constructive and creative criticism as well as benevolent and integrated support has proved the main force behind the production of this dissertation. I thank him for his inspiration. If this study has any quality, the credit goes to him, and its entire hitches are my own.

I feel pleasure in extending a sincere note of thanks to all the members of Department of English, Central University of Haryana, who extended their fullest cooperation in the work. It is an immense pleasure to convey my gratitude to all the magnanimous persons who rendered their full support to my work directly or indirectly. I am indebted to my father and mother for their love, care and moral support. I would also like to extend my thanks to my sister Anupriya, who was a constant source of motivation throughout the journey. At this point, I would like to use this platform just to say thanks to two important persons in my life, Naresh Panwar and Shiladitya whose influence in my life is much more than I could ever measure.

I would also like to extend my deep appreciation to my friends whose patience, tolerance and encouragement have been continuously giving me the courage to face challenges.

Tanupriya

M.Phil Scholar

Department of English

Central University of Haryana

Mahendergarh