I place on record my heart- felt thanks to all, whose contribution in different ways has made this dissertation possible for me.

I am thankful to all the Paniyars in Wayanad for being the driving force behind this work. For letting me into your kitchens, sharing your food experiences, and for changing my perspectives on food, I owe you a debt of gratitude.

I express my sincere thanks to my supervisor Dr. Sanjiv Kumar, for his guidance, encouragement and generous suggestions, which were crucial for the completion of my dissertation. Thank you Sir, for your constant support and valuable time.

I'm indebted to Pramod K. Nayar, whose classes at the University of Hyderabad got me hooked to popular culture, and Rajesh Sir, from Maharaja's College, Ernakulam, whose lectures on cultural studies proved the starting point for my research on food.

It's my privilege to thank the director of M.S Swaminathan Research Foundation, Dr. Anil Kumar who shared his knowledge on the tribes and helped me get in touch with the adivasis of the area. Thank you for providing a comfortable stay at the institute and for permitting me access to the research materials at the institute library.

I would like to thank:

Ravi chetan, Mereaja and Suma ma'am, for sharing their experience on working with the Paniyars.

Abi, for helping me locate the settlements and meet the Paniyars.

Babu, the smartest Paniya member whose un-diminishing enthusiasm throughout the field visit kept me on my toes.

Sheeba chechy, whose stories were an inspiration to carry forward my work on dalit food.

Maama, for driving us through the winding and picturesque roads of Wayanad in search of dalit hamlets.

This research wouldn't have been possible without the support of Appa, who accompanied me to Wayanad and pushed me to do the field work. I owe my love to Amma for having sown a passion for English at a young age and for being a constant source of support throughout my research work. Special thanks to Irene, for the positivity that she drills into me at regular intervals.

I am obliged to all my teachers and friends from the Department of English, Central University of Haryana for their encouragement and support. Special thanks to Dr. Manoj Kumar for his kind help in the final stages of the dissertation. I also express my sincere thanks to Sudeep Sir and Renu ma'am for their suggestions and encouragement. I would also like to thank Paramjeet Singh Sir for helping me format the dissertation.
