Pestered by breathing in the choking environment of Gurgaon (now Gurugram) since my adolescence, I decided to opt for ecocritical studies for my Ph.D. thesis. My opinions were welcomed at the first DRC of the Central University of Haryana. God showered His blessings in this endeavour of mine by gracing me with the invaluable guidance of my Ph.D. guide, Dr. Bir Singh Yadav and cooperation of the Head of the Department, Dr. Sanjiv Kumar.

I offer my sincere thanks to my father, Mr. Ved Parashar and my doting mother, Ms. Sushma Parashar who helped me in laying the bedrock of my Ph.D. work. This responsibility is duly performed by my husband, Dr. Rajesh Bhardwaj since 2013 who has steered me through all ups and downs of my life. I reckon the efforts of my sister, Astha Parashar who devoted many sleepless nights for making this thesis a reality. And, how can I forget my little angel Samaira who in the last days before my submission patiently bore my absence. Last but not the least, I offer my gratitude to Dr. Shubhanku Kochar without whom I would have never landed in this territory.

Above all, I am grateful to Almighty for giving me strength throughout the whole journey and especially during the last three months of my submission when I was grappling with severe backache.

Thanks...thanks a lot to all.
