

ABSTRACT

The present study is an attempt to study the socioeconomic condition of Tharu tribe resides in Lakhimpur Kheri district of Uttar Pradesh. Moreover, the study attempts to find out the impact of socioeconomic factors on household income of Tharu Tribe. Exploratory cum descriptive type of research design has been used in this study. The study has taken the help of both primary as well as secondary data. The secondary data has been collected from Census Abstract and Annual Reports of Ministry of Tribal Development whereas primary data is collected through field survey using schedule. Simple Percentage Method and Frequency Method has been used to know the household characteristics. Moreover, the result of Multiple Regression Analysis shows that occupation, land ownership and family size are the key factors responsible of household income.